CAVE EXPEDITION / WEDNESDAY, MARCH 17

$134.00 US per person
(Private Tour for AAFP Participants Need Minimum of 30 people)

Kantun Chi is a remarkable ecopark located in the heart of the Mayan Riviera. Its name means “yellow stone mouth” in Mayan. Come and enjoy this magical paradise, swim in our wonderful fresh water Cenotes and explore our underground cavern with its striking natural beauty. You’ll be treated to an unforgettable experience while you relax and enjoy nature’s wonders.

The Cenotes are impressive natural formations. A Cenote is formed when acidic water seeps through cracks and the limestone bedrock dissolving soft areas of the rock. Over time, roofed underground caverns are formed. Some can be quite large. When the water eventually dissolves enough of the limestone covering these caverns, the roofs collapse and young Cenotes are formed. Over the course of hundreds of years, these open sinkholes fill with dirt, rock and other organic material, reducing the Cenote’s water depth. The life of a Cenote comes to an end when the hole eventually fills with organic material and mineral debris. At the very end of their lives, they are called dry Cenotes and are usually covered with a variety of vegetation.

The cavern consists of two Cenotes connected by naturally formed passageways. Through out the cavern are beautiful formations of Stalagmites and stalactites. The stalactites come on a wide range of peculiar and fascinating shapes. Swim inside them and have the experience of your lifetime!
